Employment of Female Labor.

Oxford, Cal., 1911.

I intend to show that it is wrong, decidedly wrong, for women to do manual labor. Her place and her duties are at home, and away from them, in the position of a man, she is a detriment to herself and to womanhood at large. I do not mean that her place is at home from a political standpoint, but from the fact that in the beginning she was created to be there, and instructed by her Maker where she was to reign. In all that goes to make a perfect being, woman, I hold, is as far superior to man as are the heavens above our earth. All that was pure, unsullied, tender and good, was instilled in her being. Endowed with traits gentle, refined and enabling her place was designated about the heart-stone, where by her virtues and Christly precepts she was to turn from his nature of selfishness and hardness to ways of gentleness and sacredness like her own. Her's was a duty, a mission; but see what she is to-day.

I hold that it is dangerous to the extreme, to the morals of women, and a danger to labor, for them to do manual labor. To push them away from the heart-stone take away their modesty and that dignity and delicacy that men so love and expect. It gives them a hardness and blase exterior that breeds contempt and a lack of respect from every one, and only to them they are kicked aside by men of degraded, brutal instincts, and the gutter is their refuge. Women should be treated with respect by every one; but when they grow indifferent to the little courtesies of life, and all through association with men in their business positions, nothing better than dirt, disrespect and discourtesy are to be expected.

When girls are forced to the manual labor of men there is something radically wrong with society, with labor, and with womanhood, and it is a disgrace to all of them. At paltry salaries, scarcely sufficient to pay their board, they are compelled to clothe and dress themselves at the expense of their virtue. The former, devoted themselves of all honor and character, accept an influence over the young women, that drives them utterly, helplessly to destruction. There is the poverty at home, they know, and for the few dollars each week they are forced to change, from girls whose intention at first was the best, to harlots, to the end, the unloved, unloved and despised. It is better for women to exist and suffer the most exorbitant poverty and hunger, than to lead the life being followed by twenty thousand young working girls in San Francisco and Oakland to-day. Mothers and fathers look at their daughters when poverty comes at the door, and declare that their girls will not go wrong. They let her have the home, wretched though they may be, and she enters the factory. Before long she falls, and, equivalent of her disgrace, she lies about her condition. She begins to wear clothes her parents, even with her help, could not buy, and goes from bad to worse. A brief season of feverish excitement follows, and then she goes, dragging with her all those of home, who, until now, thought her proof against the temptation she was bound to contend with as a laborer.

A few years ago a beautiful girl was found in the bay at this place, and no one knew her. Twenty-four hours afterwards the chief of police had received eighteen telegrams from different parts of California from loving parents, asking if the suicide was their girl. Eighteen homes had thus been desolated through the weakness of a young girl, and a further investigation showed that all of the thirteen had fallen through connection with labor.

Until young girls are kept within the sacred precincts of home, the condition of society will grow worse, and worse until the end is horrible to conceive. Parents allow their daughters to plod the streets until midnight, taking their word for it that it is all right. Alone and unprotected, there is nothing but that which is degrading and atrocious for them to meet. They argue that they have worked all day and need the rest. So they do, but my God! see how the one sin begets the other.

There is another argument against women doing manual labor. In every case a man is displaced, and in many instances is compelled to tramp, unable to regain the foothold he has lost. He plunges into dissipation through the knowledge that loved ones are suffering and hungry at home, and is perhaps jerked up for a crime committed in a reckless moment, and sent to the penitentiary, owing to a false position of society and the introduction of woman labor to take place long and honorably filled by them.

I have no remedy to offer for this evil further than that the young be kept at home. Teach them their sacred influence and make it the one loved spot of all earth to them. Do not force the girls out into the world, for as sure as you do, so sure will they be lost if pushed into manual labor. Do better yourselves; and mothers, remember one thing: It takes all the law, all the care, all the devotion and attention to you, to save a boy or girl at best, and all should be done to keep your girls, especially from that fate whose pang are the most painful and heartrending of all, and for which there is no remedy.

My son twelve years of age, has been afflicted with scrofula for eight years. His hip joint protruded through the skin, and he could not walk except on crutches, and he was also nearly blind. I had him under the care of the best doctors without avail, and had given him up to die, when I was urged to try Bull's Sarsaparilla. He has used eight bottles and already his eyesight is restored and his limbs much better. His appetite is now good, he looks well and is quite cheerful. I think with a few more bottles he will be completely cured. —James Lee, Nashville, Tenn.

"Here's a question," said the information editor, "that I can't answer. The man wants to know 'how long girls should be courted.'"

"Just the same as short girls," returned the literary editor.

And the staff humorist stole the joke and sold it to the editor in chief for $1.—N. Y. Herald.

DO NOT SUFFER ANY LONGER.

Knowing that a cough can be checked, and the first stages of consumption broken in a week, we hereby guarantee Dr. Acker's English Cough Remedy, and will refund the money to all who buy, take it as per directions, and do not find our statement correct.

Hereditary Blood Poison.

Many of the evils of life are inherited. Parents transmit to their children a state of blood impurity. What a fearful heritage to bequeath an innocent child! Scrofula, skin diseases, erysipelas, sore eyes, ringworm, tetter, eczema, scald head, scabby surfaces, syphilitic symptoms, ulcerative and consumptive tendencies, etc., all of which make life miserable, and all of which prey to despoiling quacks. It is surely a disgrace that this should be so. It is manifestly the duty of every one to keep their blood pure and their systems in condition of good health. As a remedy for blood disease, you do yourself a great wrong by neglecting to use the compound known as Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla. There is no phase blood poison this incomparable medicine will not relieve. If a sufferer from blood disease, you do yourself great injustice if you fail to try it. Springfield Express.

Drunkness—Liquor Habit—In all the World there is But One Cure, Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be taken in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it, effecting a speedy and permanent cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or a alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been cured who have taken the Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. No harmful effect, no nausea, no vomiting, even when it draws one away from the natural companionship of life's associates, that is, in no feeling or in sympathy or in the common friendships, but in taste and habit and intellectual companionship.—Rural New Yorker.

Attorney W. E. McCormick has had a situation in the Henderson-Sidney (Va.) College faculty offered him. After consideration he has decided not to accept and will remain in this city.

Mrs. Frankel of Hopkinsville, and her sister, Mrs. Berry, who is her sister from Stouenville, Ohio, are visiting Capt. Wm. Kleemann's family in this city. They will spend the week.

Clarksville Progress.

Mr. Chas. P. McCarroll has gone to Louisville to become manager of the Greenville Tobacco Works, recently moved to that city. He will be greatly missed here in business and social circles, where he is very popular.

Why It Is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unblemished record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hoo's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

DEATHS.

An Anny patient named Givens died Monday.

An infant of Mr. Thomas Childress died near the city Tuesday.

Oliver, son of Mr. Chas. Higgen, died in the city Monday, of cholera infantum, aged one year.

An old gentleman named Brower died near Kelly Monday, of general debility. He was about 70 years of age.

Willie Yancey, son of Mr. J. W. Yancey, died at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, of typhoid fever, aged 13 years. He had been sick for more than two weeks, and was considered much better until yesterday when he suffered a relapse.

COLOR.

Infant of Charity McKeen died in the city Monday.

Mr. Van Pelt, Editor of the Craig, Mo., Meteor, went to a drug store at Hillsdale, Iowa, and asked the physician in attendance to give him a dose of something for cholera morbus and looseness of the bowels. He says: "I felt so much better the next morning that I concluded to call on the physician and get him to fix me up a supply of the medicine. I was surprised when he handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He said he prescribed it regularly in his practice and found it the best he could get or prepare. I can testify to its efficiency in my case at all events." For sale by Buckner Leavelle.

Miss Genevieve Anderson has recovered from a severe attack of sickness.

Conductor Shreoro has again secured a passenger run on this division of the L. & N.

The candidates on both sides open the stump campaign at Dogwood Chapel, north of town, to-morrow.

Do you want a good cheap Piano? Same for sale. Call on James E. Scooby, South Kentucky College.

A "lawn scene" will be given at the residence of Arthur Banks on next Thursday night, for the benefit of the C. M. E. church.

Rev. S. N. Vail's furniture arrived this week, and he is occupying the cottage on South Main, adjoining the residence of Mr. Buckner Leavelle.

The Christian Women's Charity Association will meet at the residence of Mr. S. G. Buckner, on South Main, at 4:30 p. m. Monday next, the 14th.

There will be a social at the residence of Mr. L. F. Ellis on next Friday night. Less will be served. Old and young invited. Ten cents admission.

Prof. C. H. Dietrich and Capt. A. V. Townes have begun a survey that is expected to be of great importance to Hopkinsville. They will go to Edinville along the route proposed for the Hopkinsville & Cadiz railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Higgins lost their bright little boy last Tuesday. He died of cholera infantum after but a few days illness. The funeral service was held at the residence of Mr. S. N. Vail Wednesday and the body laid to rest in the city cemetery.

The largest cow probably ever seen in the county is now in the pasture of Mr. W. S. Boush. When bought it weighed 1,000 pounds, which is nearly double the weight of an ordinary steer. It will be fattened for beef, and can, it is believed, be made to weigh nearly 2,000 pounds.

A wagon going at a rapid rate ran into Mr. J. M. Tera's carriage near Crab Orchard pond Monday evening and utterly demolished the vehicle. His wife and other members of his family were in the carriage and that they escaped unhurt is almost a miracle. The wagon belonged to Mr. L. L. Buckner.

The Lathian Light Guards will go into camp at Corleau Springs on Saturday, the 14th, and will remain one week. S. W. Gunn & Co. have extended the company the courtesies of the Springs, and a very pleasant time will be spent. Arrangements will be completed to-night, at which time all members expecting to go are requested to meet at the Army.

The sixth ball given by the Gracey Dancing Club Tuesday night was well attended and was quite a success, as usual. Good music was furnished and dancing was indulged in until long after midnight. The managers are the much credit for their untiring efforts to make it pleasant for all who attended, and without a dissenting voice the verdict was "a first-class time."

Mr. H. F. Haunack, of Boaz Springs, Ky., was thrown from his buggy Wednesday evening near the residence of Mr. Geo. R. Pierce and had his leg broken. He was taken to Mr. Pierce's house, where he was yesterday under surgical treatment. Mr. Haunack is a prominent and highly respected young man, a son-in-law of Mrs. Bush, of Boaz Springs.

In this issue is published an editorial taken from the Oakland, Cal., Dial, which was written by Mr. Joseph L. Edmundson, formerly of this city, who is now making a reputation in California journalism. His friends here will learn with pleasure that he has attained a position of prominence in his profession, being editor of an influential society paper in a large city. It will be observed that he writes a trenchant pen and writes upon an interesting subject in an entertaining style. His article is well worth a careful perusal.

The peculiar enervating effect of summer weather is driven off by Hoo's Sarsaparilla, which "makes the weak strong."

Young John Feland Resigns. (Hoping Green Times.)

Geo. R. Gorin returned Monday from Tompkinsville where he has been taking the record of the census of the county for the census bureau. He has finished his work in this district with the exception of three counties. He left Tuesday for the Second District, being sent there by State Agent Reynolds to finish the work in Davies county.

John Feland, Jr. who was appointed to do the work in the Second District, began this county, but didn't finish and has resigned his position. How long Mr. Gorin will be kept in the Second District he doesn't know, as he is there subject to the orders of his Superior. Mr. Gorin has done his work in an eminently satisfactory manner and has shown himself an expert in the business.

TWO SHOT DOWN.

Tom Bellamy Killed While Trying to "Clean Out" the Police Force.

Officer Cliborne Receives Three Troublesome Wounds.

Bellamy Finally Wounded by Officer Harvey McCord.

A BAD MAN FROM HENDERSON.

In a shooting scrape on Main street Tuesday evening Thos. R. Bellamy was killed and Policeman J. E. Cliborne shot three times in the legs and badly wounded. Five shots were fired by Bellamy, three by Policeman Harvey McCord and two on three by a third party from across the street, whose identity has not yet been fixed.

Shortly before 7:30 o'clock Policeman Cliborne came around the corner of Eighth street walking with Bellamy. The latter was drunk and very noisy and Cliborne was remonstrating with him. He had out a pistol which he was flourishing in his hands and defying arrest. When they reached Savage's produce store on Main, two doors from the corner, both parties stopped. Cliborne stood on the curb in front of Savage's and Bellamy a little lower down in front of Bell's saloon. At this juncture someone telephoned to the Police headquarters that Cliborne was in trouble and Officer Harvey McCord started to his assistance. The distance is about three squares and all this time Bellamy was flourishing his pistol, every now and then pointing it at Cliborne and ordering him to hold up his hands. Cliborne made no effort to draw his own weapon, but was trying to quiet Bellamy by talking to him, and says he did not believe Bellamy intended to shoot him but thought he could finally get him quiet and arrest him without trouble.

Judge J. T. Savage was an eye witness to the affair and as he is a very cool and self-possessed man, who seldom gets excited his testimony may be taken as very reliable. He sat in a chair in front of Hoo's, the store adjoining his own, during the whole trouble. Taking up the matter at the approach of McCord his account is as follows:

"McCord came across from Hoo's corner and seems to have reached Hoo's before Bellamy, or Cliborne saw him. Just as McCord reached my door he drew his pistol. Bellamy at the same time saw him and turning his weapon from Cliborne to McCord both raised and fired simultaneously. McCord stood in my door behind the chicken coop and Bellamy about ten steps from him in front of Bell's saloon. Cliborne was on the curb about half way between them. After the first shot McCord got behind the door facing and took deliberate aim at Bellamy and shot twice more. One of these shots killed him. Bellamy in the meantime had turned his weapon upon Cliborne at close range and shot him in rapid succession three times. His last shot after receiving his death wound went wild and struck the window frame to the left of the little vestibule in front of Bell's saloon. All five of Bellamy's shots have been accounted for. The first struck the top frame work of Savage's chicken coop, was deflected downward, killed a chicken in its passage through the coop and came out at the other end, within a few inches of McCord's legs. If the shot had been aimed two inches higher, McCord would have been hit, as he was directly in line and his body showing from the waist up. Bellamy's next three shots were fired into Cliborne. Two of them made flesh wounds in his left thigh and the other shattered the bone of the right leg four inches above the knee. Cliborne fell over the third wound and dragged himself on one knee and dropped in Savage's door. He never drew his weapon at all. It was in his pocket with two of the five chambers empty after he fell. McCord fired three shots, only one of which took effect. The others served to scatter the crowd sitting around the Phoenix Hotel corner, but injured no one."

The above account is corroborated in all essential details by R. H. Holland and L. Bell, who also saw it from their doors. In addition to the eight shots located, other shots were fired; two of these struck the facing of Bell's window and which evidently came from across the street. The witnesses decline to say who this third party was. Officer McCord's statement is substantially the same as Judge Savage's.

Bellamy, after receiving his fatal wound, staggered back a few steps and fell at the Opera House door. When picked up he was dead, having been shot through the body.

Thos. R. Bellamy was of English parentage and was born in Evansville 37 years ago. He was a bricklayer by trade and while living in this city in 1879 married Miss Mattie Davis, a daughter of Mrs. A. J. Davis, and they have one child, a three-year-old boy who works at Bassett & Co's. Some years ago Bellamy moved to Henderson and worked at his trade. He was a Republican and when Harrison came in he got a place in the railway service which he lost some time ago by reason of his drunkenness. He arrived on the 5 p. m. train Tuesday and struck the town drunk and disorderly end in three hours was a corpse as detailed above. His body was buried in the City Cemetery Wednesday, from the residence of Mrs. A. J. Davis, where Mrs. Bellamy has been for some weeks. Bellamy was a good mechanic and ordinarily a quiet fellow, but quarrelsome when in his cups. His fate was brought on by his own doing and Officer McCord is sure to be acquitted when the examining trial is held.

CLIBORNE'S WOUNDS.

Officer Cliborne is not so badly hurt as was at first supposed and will recover, the doctors think, without the loss of his leg. He rested well Wednesday night and was getting along comfortably yesterday. The right leg wound is the troublesome one and it was at first thought amputation would be necessary. Mr. Cliborne has been on the force about six months, and has made a good officer. He has a family.
